Poem

Read the poem below, and in full sentences, answer the questions that follow.

SAFETY ON THE ROAD.

Keep safe my child,
 For you play on the road,
 You make us carry the load,
 As we mourn the loss.

Keep on the right as you walk,
Along the pavements as you talk,
With other pedestrians on the move,
Towards the big sign post,
Where people but not zebra cross!

Before you blame them all,
The careless motorists and the reckless cyclists,
Keep safe on the road my child,
For life is irreplaceable.

(RAJOB OKUNIT)

Passage

Read the passage below and in full sentence answer the questions that follow.

One Saturday morning, I witnessed an accident at a zebra crossing. I was going with my mother to do weekly shopping and we had been caught up in the traffic jam. When we approached the zebra crossing, we stopped to allow some pedestrians cross the road. In the meantime, I kept myself busy by studying the nearby signposts.

After some time, we heard the regular sounding of car horns. It was a fleet of bridal cars, all of them sleek Pajero's. Beep! Beep! They went as other cars gave way.

Suddenly a speeding taxi appeared from no where and knocked down a man who was crossing the road. The reckless driver had been talking on a mobile phone. In the process, he rammed into one of the bridal cars in the opposite direction.

Soon, a curious crowd had gathered at the scene and every one was talking at once. The taxi driver was trying to escape but some youths stopped him and started beating him up. In the midst of all the confusion, the police patrol arrived. One police officer who seemed to be the patrol leader asked what had happened. Everyone started talking in excitement. The police officer pointed at my mother and asked her to describe what had happened. My mother explained all that had happened. The officer thanked her and asked the other police officer to carry the victim on the police patrol pick up truck.

Two breakdown trucks arrived. One towed away the damaged Pajero car. Another one towed away the taxi. The police confiscated the reckless driver's driving permit and arrested him.

Motion: Science Has Made Life Easy

Chairperson: Good afternoon to you. We have four speakers; two opposers and two proposers. Each of them will be given five minutes. The first speaker is Honourable Mukisa.

Mukisa: Thank you chairperson, Science has made life easy for all of us. Take computers, for example: They store information. We can access Internet using computers. Through the Internet, we can communicate to the rest of the world in just a few minutes. Computers are also used in factories to control machines. It is because of science that people go to the moon, fly aero planes, use mobile phones and broadcast live events. Modern house hold equipment like cookers, washing machines and many others have made house work very easy. Thank you.

Chair person: We may now hear from the first opposer. Yes, Honourable Florence.

Florence: Thank you chair person. Science has done us great harm. Take an example of the noise machines make in factories. They also emit toxic gases. We also need to consider the accidents caused by vehicles on roads and machines at places of work

Owor: Point of information.

Chair person: Point of information granted.

Owor: Chair man, doesn't the speaker know that modern machines have been fitted with silencers? There are also good methods for disposing off harmful introduction of Automated Teller Machines; one can get banking services without having to go inside the bank. Thank you.

Chair person: I now call upon the second opposer Honourable Nabirye.

Nabirye: Thank you sir. The Automated Teller Machines (ATM) have encouraged a lot of theft. Science has promoted pornography, which is not good. I am sure we would be a better society without science. Thank you.

Chair person: The debate is now open to the floor. You can contribute to the debate in only two minutes. Yes, Shamim.

Shamim: Chairperson, I am here to support the motion. What better entertainment can the owner get without modern stereo system, the TV and computer games? The whole world is relying on science. Who does not appreciate the cooling and heating system in vehicles and buildings? Thank you.

Chair person: One more speaker. Yes, Ruyonga

Ruyonga: Chair person, sir, dangerous products are destroying human hair and skin. The use of chemicals should be discouraged. Thank you.

Chair person: This is the end of the debate. I request the secretary and the judge to announce the scores.

Turomwe: Thank you, chairperson. The opposers have scored 30 marks and the proposers have scored 42 marks.

Chair person: I would like to thank all the speakers. The proposers were able to convince us on the motion. Let's clap all the speakers.

QUESTIONS

1. What are the main points made by the speakers on the proposers' side?
2. Write the role of each official in the debate.
3. Why did the proposers win the debate?
4. Which side would you take in this debate? Give two reasons for your side.
