CARPENTRY, A PROFITABLE JOB

One day, Bruna failed to make it to the next class because his father died when he was almost completing P.6. This came when his father was struck by lightning as he was felling trees to get timber to make furniture since he was a carpenter.

Bruna was taken to his uncle to be looked after. His uncle helped him to complete P.6 and thereafter, he failed to get school fees to join P.7. Bruna sold his three cocks and the little money he got was used to pay the prominent carpenter in Songea Town. He wanted him to equip him with skills in carpentry. He was accepted and Bruna started learning the practical work. Within a period of thirty - five days, Bruna had learnt to make good furniture.

From there, Bruna was employed at that very workshop from where he was learning. After two years, he had got a lot of money to start his own workshop. His workshop has grown so big that he is employing eight workers. He earns fifty thousand shillings daily. This money has helped him to pay school fees for his twins and provide food for his family.

Bruna is very kind and generous since he grew up as an orphan. Through this experience, he sells his furniture cheaply and that is why he has many customers. These customers treasure his furniture very much because of being durable. He is now promising orphans in his village to go back to school and he pays school fees for them. You render a good service to people

At your places of work, you are kings
You identify the problems our vehicles have Like doctors examining patients' illnesses
You deserve a higher pay than drivers.
